Historical Note

Tengen, Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of Atari Games, was a video game company that produced home console games based on Atari arcade games. Tengen operated between 1987 and 1994.

Atari, Inc. was established in 1972 by Nolan Bushnell and Ted Dabney. In 1977, Atari entered the home console market with its Video Entertainment System, and Bushnell sold his majority share of the company to Warner Brothers. In 1984, Jack Tramiel, the former head of Commodore, acquired the home and computer division of Atari from Warner, renaming the company Atari Corporation. Soon after, Warner sold its 60% majority share of the coin-op division to Namco. Namco subsequently renamed the arcade division Atari Games. As part of a deal Warner made with Tramiel, Atari Games could not create hardware or software that competed with Atari Corporation under the Atari name.

In 1987, Atari Games formed a subsidiary called Tengen, which would produce licensed games for the Nintendo Entertainment System (NES) and other home consoles. Tengen ran into legal trouble with Nintendo in 1988 following attempts to circumvent Nintendo's strict licensing agreements by mimicking the NES code, so that their unauthorized games could be played on the NES. After Nintendo blocked Tengen from selling these unlicensed games, Tengen sued Nintendo for unfair competition; Nintendo countersued Tengen for copyright and patent infringement. Tengen lost its legal battle against Nintendo in 1994.

Despite Tengen's years-long, public skirmish with Nintendo, it produced games for several different consoles, including the Sega Genesis, Sega Game Gear, and TurboGrafx-16. In 1994, Time Warner purchased a controlling share of Atari Games, consolidating both Atari Games and Tengen into Time Warner Interactive.

Collection Scope and Content Note

The Tengen Inc. records document Atari Games' brief and unsuccessful foray into console gaming. Materials include correspondence, photographs, assembly drawings, schematics, artwork, promotional material, and source code floppy disks. A sizeable portion of this collection covers marketing and publicity in the form of sell sheets, catalogs, and posters. The materials are dated between 1985 and 1995, with the bulk of the materials from 1987-1994 (the period of operation for Tengen). Many of the materials are oversized. Folders marked with an asterisk (*) have been treated for prior water damage but should be handled with gloves as a precaution.

The Tengen, Inc. records are arranged into five series, two of which have been further divided into subseries. The collection is housed in three full map cases and four archival document boxes. The map cases are located in a storage area separate from the library and archives space, so please allow additional time for retrieval by staff members.
